Malyia McNaughton founded Made by Malyia in 2014. The collection began with a search for the perfect body chain for a music festival. Malyia instead designed her own. Due to overwhelming requests from friends and strangers interested in her design, she began selling them on Etsy. She realized she had discovered her true passion and quit her fashion buying job to pursue her dream full time. Malyia draws inspiration from the architecture and pulse of New York City, African culture, indigenous tribal adornment, and nature.

Malyia is based in Brooklyn, NY and serves on Black in Jewelry Coalition board of directors, the first international non-profit membership association dedicated to the inclusion and advancement of Black professionals within the gem, jewelry, and watch industry.

“The collection was inspired by water, specifically the ocean waves, and nature. The pieces feature elements similar to the way water changes shape as it moves through the world and are designed to show the connection between us and nature. Ever changing and fluid.”
